What is manipulation of sports competitions?

Manipulation of sports competitions

“Manipulation of sport competitions means an intentional arrangement, act or omission aimed at an improper alteration of the result or the course of a sport competition in order to remove all or part of the unpredictable nature of the aforementioned sport competition with a view to obtaining an undue advantage for oneself or for others.”

(Council of Europe 2014)

Concepts

- Manipulation of sports competitions
- Competition manipulation
- Match manipulation
- Result manipulation
- Match-fixing
- Throwing a game

Frequency of manipulation of sports competitions

- Difficult to estimate accurately as most of the cases are never investigated
- Any cases detected do not necessarily tell the whole truth about the extent of the phenomenon
- Manipulation of sports competitions is difficult to detect or prove reliably

“Previously in my volleyball career, I witnessed a lot of unfair play to get a certain result. I don’t even want to know how common result manipulation is. It makes me feel bad. It’s not just about the results but everyone being able to perform to the best of their abilities and the best team winning. Fans should be able to support their team without hesitation and no one should have to use their time and energy on thinking who or how much money there was involved behind a certain result.

When I played volleyball in Azerbaijan, the game was not as fair as possible. Some referees were bribed and there were successful and unsuccessful attempts to buy a certain result. It made me frustrated and I lost my real passion for sports. I wondered why should I play to win if it is not possible in the end.” Riikka Lehtonen, beach volley player

Betting-related manipulation

The goal is to gain a financial advantage by influencing matches or competitions.

Financial advantage can be direct or indirect:

- Direct advantage refers to a sum of money won through betting
- Indirect advantage refers to criminal advantage gained through money laundering

Different modes of betting-related manipulation include, for example:

- Point shaving
- Spot-fixing
- Player infiltration
- Ghost games

According to estimates, betting-related manipulation is about one and a half times more common than sports-based manipulation.

Information relating to any competition that a person possesses by virtue of his or her position in relation to a sport or competition, excluding any information already published or common knowledge, easily accessible to interested members of the public or disclosed in accordance with the rules and regulations governing the relevant Competition.

(IOC & Interpol 2016)

Insider information can be, for example:

- Lineups not yet published
- Health of athletes
- Tactics and formations

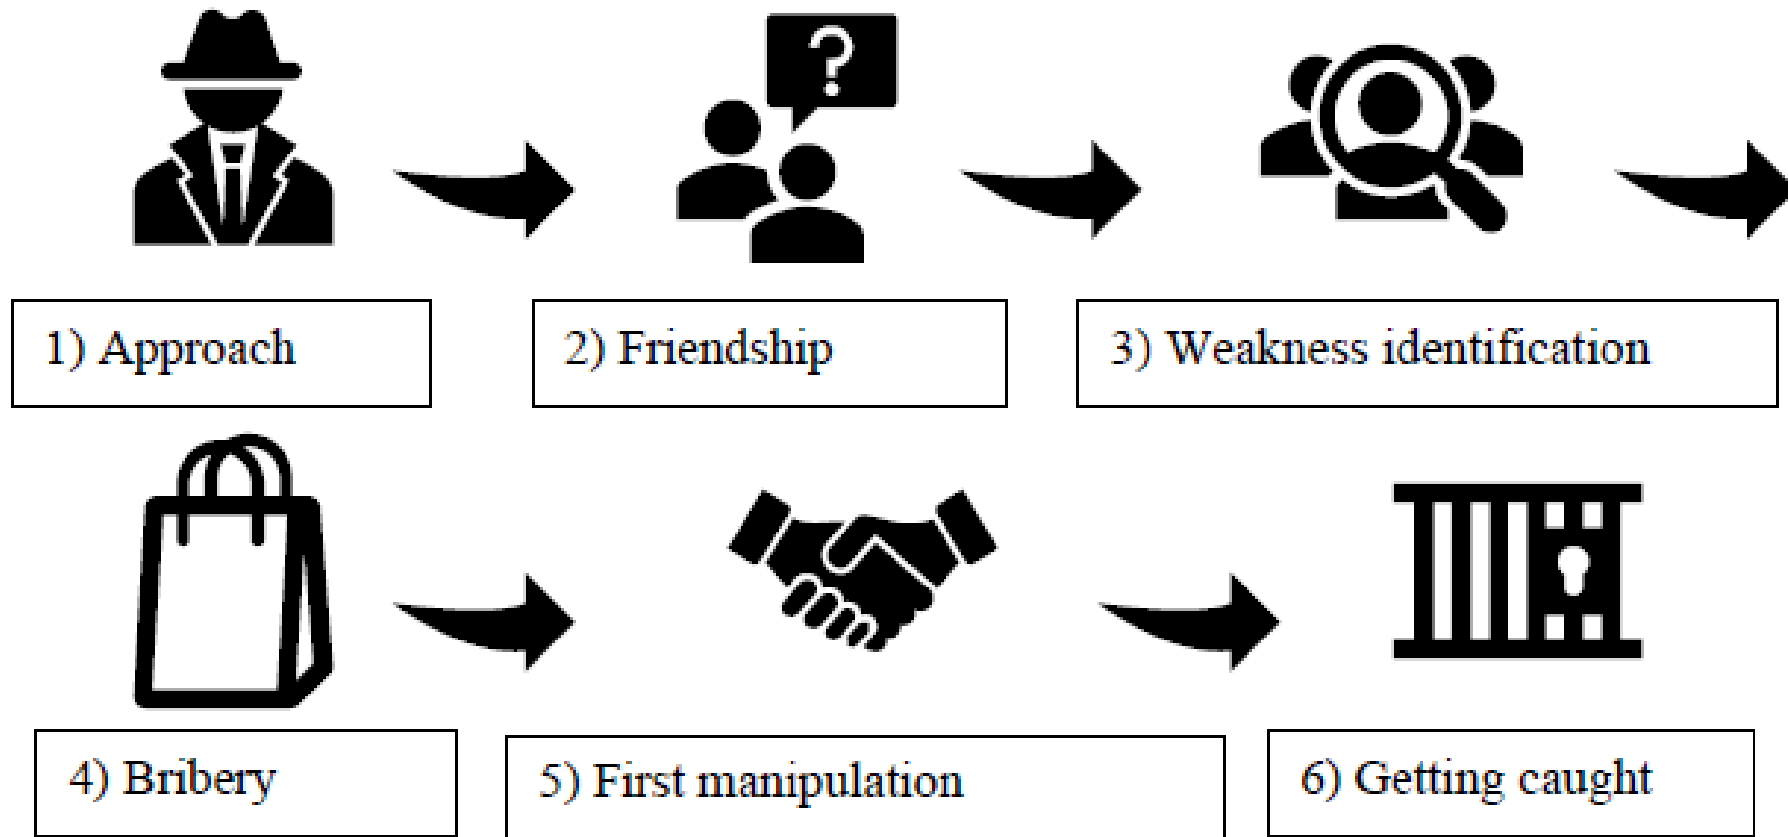

Manipulators

Roughly speaking, the methods in which manipulators approach people involved in sports can be divided into two categories:

- In countries with high levels of corruption, a strategy aiming for “quick profits” is preferred
- In countries with low levels of corruption, long-term relationships with the preferred targets are formed

How manipulators approach their targets

What are the risk factors for manipulation of sports competitions?

Risk factors

Susceptibility factors

- Individual sports vs. team sports
- Strong authority – culture of manipulation
- Insignificant competitions
- Inadequacy of competition rules
- Lower tiers
- Financial factors (e.g. clubs' economic difficulties, overdue salaries)
- Vulnerability of an individual (e.g. gambling problem)
- Feeling of being excluded or not committed to a community
- Poor awareness of the phenomenon

*Greed and fear are the most common underlying motivators.
The key factor of manipulation of sports competitions is often money.*

Motivators

Positive

- Bribes, such as:
 - monetary compensation
 - valuable sponsor deals
 - gifts and services
 - promise of a transfer to a more successful team

Negative

- Pressure and threats
- Rhetorical and psychological manipulation

Prevention of manipulation of sports competitions

If you knew your opponent accepted bribes, what would you do?

And what if your teammates accepted bribes?

Parties involved in manipulation of sports competitions and related legislation

Parties involved in manipulation of sports competitions

Key parties involved in the prevention of manipulation of sports competitions are

- the sports movement
- betting agencies
- police and judicial authorities

FINCIS prevents manipulation of sports competitions in co-operation with

- Veikkaus
- various sports stakeholders and authorities

FINCIS appoints the chairperson and secretaries of Finland's National Platform and investigates violations related to manipulation together with sports federations.

National Platform of Finland

Authorities	Sports organisations	Betting agency
• Ministry of Education and Culture • National Police Board of Finland • National Bureau of Investigation • Helsinki Prosecutor's Office	• The Finnish Olympic Committee • Football Players Association of Finland • Football Association of Finland • Finnish Center for Integrity in Sports (FINCIS)	• Veikkaus
Appointment of the National Platform – Ministry of Education and Culture
Secretariat – Finnish Center for Integrity in Sports (FINCIS)

National Platform

According to Article 13 of the Convention on the Manipulation of Sports Competitions, National Platforms shall, for example:

- serve as an information hub, collecting and disseminating information;
- co-ordinate the fight against the manipulation of sports competitions;
- receive, centralise and analyse information on irregular and suspicious bets and
- co-operate with all organisations and relevant authorities at national and international levels, including national platforms of other States.

The National Platforms form an unofficial network (Group of Copenhagen).

Convention on the Manipulation of Sports Competitions

- The Council of Europe established the first convention in Macolin, Switzerland in 2014
- The purpose and goal of the convention:
“to combat the manipulation of sports competitions in order to protect the integrity of sport and sports ethics in accordance with the principle of the autonomy of sport”
- Finland has not yet ratified the convention

Legislation related to manipulation of sports competitions

- There is no legislation specifically designed to address manipulation of sports competitions in Finland
- Provisions related to bribery in business have primarily been applied
- Manipulation of sports competition can constitute the following sections of the Criminal Code:
 - Fraud
 - Money laundering
 - Giving of a bribe in business
 - Acceptance of a bribe in business

Challenges related to legislation

- The legislation concerning bribes has not been originally prepared for manipulation of sports competitions.
- In investigations and judgments, only “giving or acceptance of a bribe in business” can be applied instead of fraud, as the target of deceiving (gambling company) is typically unknown.
- The provisions regarding bribes in business do not apply to matches played in lower leagues as being involved in these matches is not considered to be pursuit of a commercial activity.
- New offence “fraud in sports” as a solution?

Corruption and betting markets

Corruption in sports

- Corruption = taking advantage of a special responsibility for personal interests
- Hundreds of billions of euros flow through sports every year → the cash flows involve certain questionable developments, such as corruption
- Manipulation of sports competitions is a form of corruption in sports

International betting markets

- Sports betting has become a significant economic activity
- It is possible to place bets on all types of competitions and sports in any country at any time of the day
- Sports betting markets have become global due to:
 - Consolidation of betting markets
 - Increased betting opportunities
 - Internationalisation of sports broadcasts
- Online sports betting is one of the most rapidly growing global forms of betting
 - Online gambling has doubled between 2009 and 2016 (statistics by Statista)
- Live betting on matches and events in progress has particularly increased its popularity

Organised crime

- Growing betting markets have also attracted more criminal organisations.
- In addition to regulated and legal sports betting, illegal markets have also grown.
- The majority of illegal betting takes place in South and East Asia.

- International crime syndicates have detected vulnerabilities and flaws in judicial systems, legislations and the increase of free mobility.
- Manipulation of sports competitions is a particularly attractive activity for international crime syndicates due to its high profits and short sentences.
- Criminal online betting is difficult to track and the related legislation is typically inadequate.

3. Internal guidelines in cases of manipulation of sports competitions

Federations and other parties are recommended to establish their own internal guidelines for cases of manipulation of sports competitions

Example of a protocol

2. Preliminary processing of the case within the federation and decisions on further actions (if necessary, reports from the parties involved can be requested and FINCIS can be consulted at this stage)
3. Reporting the case to FINCIS and the police
4. If the case is related to agreements between the federation and Veikkaus, Veikkaus must be contacted (in such cases, the federation, FINCIS and Veikkaus typically hold a joint meeting)

4. Assessment of the threat of manipulation of sports competitions by FINCIS

The Convention on the Manipulation of Sports Competitions requires that all contracting parties perform a national risk analysis concerning manipulation of sports competitions.

FINCIS performs the risk analysis accordingly:

- Contact between the federation and FINCIS
- Risk assessment with a survey
- Interview and survey review
- Providing the sports federation with a completed analysis

What can I do as an athlete?

“Sports has always been an important part of my life. When you play sports, you forget everything else and feel present in a way that is difficult to find elsewhere. This is a result of the sport being pure and competing with a certain set of rules. A match or a competition must be won on the pitch instead of agreeing on the result on the sidelines. In sports, everything is possible and the underdog can sometimes win and succeed. If the result is determined in advance, the beauty of sports all but vanishes. Identify, object and report is a simple way to approach foul play. If it is suggested to you to take part in foul play or you notice foul play, report it. Sports is dear to us, so let’s keep it pure and as beautiful as possible.”
